SEE SUCCESS
IN '42 DRIVE,
$136,618 RAISED

Reporting a total of $136,618.25 the 1942 Jewish Welfare Fund went into the final days of the campaign, with every prospect of going over the top in its drive for $168,000.

A report meeting is set for Friday afternoon at a luncheon at Kirshbaum Center. The $136,618.25 sum was reported at Wednesday night's meeting.

Surpassing the expectations of even the most optimistic, the opening Defense Rally and Dinner Sunday night at the Riley Room saw the sum of $121,856.50 raised from 580 givers. These same givers gave $97,192.00 last year. The increase is 25.4% for this year.

With just over $31,618.25 to go to reach the quota, drive leaders were expecting the best. A total of 1,246 cards are yet to be seen, and an increase of about 10 per cent all along the line would realize the quota, while a continuation of the increases as shown at the Sunday night dinner would put the campaign well over the top.

Much comment was heard throughout the community on the fine way in which the opening dinner was conducted. L. L. Goodman, drive chairman, was praised for arranging the affair so that there was not the slightest embarrassment to any giver.

The talk by Dr. Frank Kingdon was generally described as one of the most forceful addresses ever heard in the community.

ZIONISTS GUESTS

"They Find a Home," a stirring picture of Jewish rehabilitation in Palestine, and "Collective Adventure," an epic of modern pioneering in the home land, will be filmed in technicolor and sound. Isidore Feibleman, director of Bellefaire, will be the commentator for the film showing the work at the institution.

Jewish Women Here Give Non-Jews Easter Holiday

A fine example of inter-group co-operation took place Sunday, April 5, when the Jewish women of the community staffed the Army, Navy and Marine Service Men's Club and the Union Station Canteen, relieving the non-Jewish personnel who wished to attend Easter Sunday services. Mrs. David Lurvey, president of the Federation of Jewish Women's Clubs, called Mrs. Dorothy Buschman, head of the Service Men's Club, and offered her services and those of other Jewish women for that day.

Rep. Dingel To Speak Here On Jewish Army

The Indianapolis Jewish community will be host to one of the leading members of the U. S. Congress when Representative John Dingel, of Michigan, will be principal speaker at an open meeting of the Indianapolis Zionist District at 3 p. m., Sunday, April 26, in the main auditorium of the World War Memorial. Rep. Dingel will speak on "The Jewish Army and the Democracies."

A special invitation to those in the community who are opposed to the formation of a Jewish army in Palestine was issued this week by David L. Sablosky, president of the Indianapolis District, who said he hoped that those on both sides of the argument would take the opportunity to hear the distinguished speaker.

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS

BELIEVES MR. PINKUS MISUNDERSTOOD, ABSOLVES ALLISONS

To the editor,

I read the item, under "Freedom of the Press" written by one Seymour Pinkus and in writing this he had hoped that some one reading it would be able to do something about this so called Jewish situation at Allison's.

First of all let me say that I have been a subscriber of the Post since it has been in existence and I don't think that this article did the Post justice.

I disagree very much with Mr. Pinkus and I think I know why the word Jewish might have been written across his application.

If you recall Mr. Pinkus stated that Mr. Hall asked him what his nationality was and he said Austro-Polish. Just what does Austro-Polish mean to Allison's or anyone else, it can mean a number of things. Mr. Hall can take this application as one being a foreigner, or perhaps a spy, stating that one is Austro-Polish can mean that they are Catholic, Protestant or Jew, so after this Rudy spoke to Mr. Hall and told him that Mr. Pinkus was Jewish he was perhaps, merely correcting the application by putting down the word Jewish. Not knowing Mr. Pinkus very well I'm sure he must be an American Jew, so why not say that he is an American not Austro-Polish.

After all Allison's is a defense plant, and they have to take every and all precaution. I personally know of four men working at Allison's, Jewish men who are holding down a very good job there. There happens to be one boy in this group who owes his future to Allison's. He started there quite some time ago and has had several promotions. He's held small jobs before elsewhere and Allison's gave him his first real opportunity, gave him his chance to show his ability.

Another chap I know was drafted into this war and just because of his splendid work at Allison's they are doing everything in their power to have him deferred. Now I am wondering just what this item will do to the future of these boys and men. I only hope this does not reach Allison's proper. It may and it can start a lot of trouble for the Jewish people now employed there, even to the extent of losing their jobs.

I'm sure there has been some misunderstanding on Mr. Pinkus' part and I don't mean to insult his intelligence and if he were to check further into the plant itself I'm sure he will find many more Jews working there, some from out of town, that we may not know of.

This Jewish situation all over the country is bad enough without our looking for any more trouble. I'm hoping this can be cleared up in order to protect the jobs now being held by some of our Jewish boys and girls now employed at Allison's. Let me also add this, I do not happen to be an employee of Allison's so I am not trying to protect myself, only those Jewish people who are now working there.

I heartily believe that if Mr. Pinkus would check further he would see he made a mistake about the whole situation. Incidentally was he not his ownself more or less in a round about way, ashamed to say, when asked his nationality that he was Jewish. Mr. Hall may of considered his reply as being sort of underhanded.

TELLS OF TWO INCIDENTS, SAYS NOW IS TIME TO CLEAN UP CONDITION

To the Editor,

Back in 1936 at Washington University, a large corporation posted a letter with the college asking for employees. A brilliant Jewish student told his professor that he was going to apply. The professor advised him not to as he was advised Jews were not desired.

Several years ago, a Jewish boy in Anderson, just out of I. U. went to work in the Personnel Dept. of a large Anderson factory. He was told in confidence by an executive that he would have little chance for promotion since he was a Jew.

From this it is logical to believe that the management responsible for company policies are probably the ones to blame, and if you go right to the top, the man who could correct this condition if he wanted to is General Knudsen, former chairman of the Board of General Motors.

If these companies won't stop their discrimination now they certainly won't stop them in peace-time. In my opinion, we have the makings here of a powerful fascist group of industrialists that will exert more and more pressure against disliked minority groups as the war continues.

I think that now is the time to bring the whole matter out into the open by calling it to the attention of those in charge of war production, and even to the President, if necessary.

Also now is a good time to get Employment Agencies to eliminate the "religion" question from their application cards and to ask the American Newspaper Publishers' Association not to accept classified ads that mention religious requirements. Advertising Age has already adopted this policy after I had called it to their attention.

AL SEGAL Speaks On Of Human Beings

THERE has been a lot written lately in the Saturday Evening Post and elsewhere, on what's the matter with Jews. It seems to be taken for granted by all the writers that there is something special the matter with us because so many people don't like us.

The fact is, though, that what's the matter with us is the same as is the matter with all the rest of human-kind. We are no worse and no better.

There is a flattering theory that anti-Semites don't like us because in us they see the protagonists of the Ten Commandments and in us they see also the kinsman of Jesus who gave the Sermon on the Mount. They are afraid of and hate such decencies as the Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount and so they fear and hate the Jews from whom those documents sprang.

I have another theory which may be as tenable: They dislike us not so much for the virtues which they discover in us but rather because of their own faults which they see repeated in us as human beings.

We have been used as a kind of mirror in which mankind sees himself and all his defects and, child-like, throws stones at his image; he hates himself for all his shortcomings and takes his hatred out on the reflection of himself that he finds in other human beings called Jews. It is a vicarious atonement that we suffer, like the he-goat of Holy Writ upon whose back all the sins of the community were placed; he was then driven into the wilderness.

I believe the psychologists have a word or two for this aberration to the human mind.

It is hard otherwise to explain people like Nazis whose indictment of Jews is a catalog of all their own sins: Their own greed, their arrogance, their acquisitiveness, their aggression, their ruthless purpose to take over the world.

Mentally-warped, mean little Jew-baiters in America look at Jews and with expectorating contempt ascribe to them all their own meannesses.

It is no use to tell them that it is really themselves they are despising. I have a dog named Lem that barks furiously at his own image in the mirror. I might as well attempt to speak to Lem: "Lem, this is yourself you are barking at in the mirror. Yourself with your low, mongrel breed, your ugly unkempt black hair, your fleas."

Lem would keep on barking at himself and Jew-baiters will keep on barking at themselves as they look at Jews and their human faults. Lem, however, does display a certain intelligence lacking in anti-Semites. He doesn't keep up a campaign of barking at his image in the mirror through days, nights, months and years. He doesn't try to smash the mirror to destroy the reflection of himself. He barks a few barks and then turns away with a growl and retires to philosophical enjoyment of life.

He settles himself on a splotch of sunlight on the living room floor and half closes his eyes in dreamy meditation: "Aw, after all, we are all dogs together." Or he devotes himself assiduously to scratching his fleas, flea by flea: "Why should we dogs bark at each other when there is this common enemy, the flea, to fight in order that we may make this a more comfortable world for us all." Such is the superior intelligence of Lem.

If, finally, there are no Jews left mankind may take up Patagonians or Eskimos at whom to bark as hateful images of mankind's own faults.

ALL this suggests that the faults and frailties of Jews are just the same as of other people. The only special fault one can find in Jews is that they aren't better people than they are, considering their history and their spiritual inheritance.

Many of them behave as if they were people who were born only yesterday, rather than as men and women who have lived a very long time and have suffered a great experience of life and should by now know how to distinguish between what's precious and what's phony.

They behave like the children who didn't know their inheritance of the golden mountain and played at making little hills out of mud. They have prophets who showed them the way to go up the mountain toward the stars but they have gone along with all the other errant pilgrims to follow mirages in the desert.

They have the magnificence of great spiritual riches to abide with them in their houses but they prefer the gaudy toys of their time—the red, white and blue chips at the whirling roulette wheel, the speed of the twinkling car, the artificial moonlight of the night club, the gay kaleidoscope of swift living.

(Again, in these preoccupations they are altogether like the most of mankind.)

They are the discoverers of the one infinite God but they serve at the altars of the more popular false gods who are holding bankrupt mankind in receivership.

They have been given to look at God and to know Him but their eyes go searching for pennies with all the blind of the world which is to say, practically all the human-kind.

SUGGESTS LETTER EXCHANGE FOR MEN IN SERVICES

To the editor,

Should have taken the time long ago to thank you for the Jewish Post that I have been receiving so gratuitously.

I never fully realized how delectable the news can be in that little paper, but its a lift to us in the armed forces.

I have a suggestion to offer which I hope will be taken into consideration. Would it be possible for the Jewish boys of our town, in the services now, to have set aside in your paper a column by which they could correspond with one another. You see these boys were lifelong friends and they are pretty widely scattered, and know it would be quite interesting hearing from them in all parts of the U. S. The Jewish Post could be a bond that links our boys together, and they are our boys.

Thanking you for past favors, and wishing the Jewish Post a very successful future, I am

P. F. C. ABE S. STEIN.

Fort Benning, Ga.

Editor's Note: The suggestion is a good one. All letters from soldiers, sailors, etc., will be printed in this column, whether of interest to Post readers or not. Almost all Indianapolis Jewish men in the service now get the Post (free) and every letter sent in will be read from Hawaii to the Canal Zone, and of course, in camps all over the nation.

Holidays begin at sundown the day before the date designated.

The editor's chair,

Six months ago I told L. L. Goodman that he couldn't get the givers out in the hundreds to his opening meeting, and then that if he did, and still adhered to his rule of no pressure, it wouldn't make any difference because he wouldn't realize any increased giving. Sunday night proved that as a prophet I am not infallible, although off hand I can't remember very well any other instances where I've been wrong.

It is difficult to write about it now, but the conversation centered about the sharp practices of many Jewish business men. He was Jewish himself, and although not particularly active in many organizations, he is a member of all of them, and attends Friday night services regularly. But he argued that for some reason in their background Jewish business men had little honor in their dealings. When I said that he must agree with Hitler, he thought just a second, because the admission forced him to realize what he was saying and then either because he didn't want to back down, or because that was really his feeling, he said, "Yes, to a great extent, I do." I called him a Jewish anti-Semite, and he said he wasn't, that he was just stating the facts.

Then a few days later one of the leading women of the Jewish community, a very fine person, was in my office, and I mentioned the fact that the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in New York, although over half of its salesmen were Jewish, was once accused of discrimination in its 20,000 or so office employees. She said she could understand that the insurance company was justified. The Jewish employees could not be trusted to treat with confidence what they might see, she explained.

Looks as if Hitler has convinced even us, which certainly explains why he has persuaded so many non-Jews that we're an abomination.

Morale Shattered, They Decide on Race Suicide

IN THE matter of Jewish morale discussed in the editorial headed, "A Simple Twist of the Wrist" in last week's issue, there is the short extemporaneous talk made by Harold Weinstein at the group meeting of Northern Indiana lodges of B'nai B'rith Sunday at Gary in which he reported a conversation held on the beach of a Miami Beach hotel by a group of young Jewish college students.

Mr. Weinstein reported that in daily discussions these young college students decided that race suicide was the only solution for the Jewish problem. The young people, according to Mr. Weinstein, rejected assimilation as a possible solution, and after seeking answers this way and that decided that the only honorable action was for Jewish parents to forego having children and for the Jewish people to disappear from the earth.

This editorial is not concerned with the answer for this honest, but misguided group, but this piece does want to point out that the morale of this group has been shattered. Yet in this respect the group in question is no different from other and older Jewish groups, although the younger people with their questioning about the future for Jews are more apt to grab at some morbid but heroic straw.

Another indication of the same dent in the Jewish armor is the fact that applicants for jobs in offices that discriminate now, when possible, deny their religion. No one who has talked to young people who have been turned down from job after job because they answered Jewish in the line which asked "religious preference" can blame them when they say "Unitarian," or "Christian Scientist." The first slap in the face of this kind is the rudest awakening any young person can have.

Is it any wonder then that young Jewish people discussing the future voted for race suicide.

Mr. Weinstein, who said that he had almost forgotten that young people had matured minds and could discuss serious questions such as the future of Jews with all the profundity that only a despairing youth can show, pointed out how serious was the situation when young Jews make such decisions. Their morale is gone, beaten down by attack after attack.

The Post will try to give an answer to the problem next week.

History Made Here Sunday Night

CAMPAIGN history was made Sunday night when 580 givers contributed a total of $121,856.50 at the opening dinner of the 1942 Jewish Welfare Fund Campaign. Although the raising of this amount is a stupendous achievement in itself, and although increases were a full 25.4 per cent over last year the real accomplishment was in the development of a new technique, which The Post believes, may be put into practice throughout the United States.

Informed that Mr. L. L. Goodman planned to eliminate all embarrassment and the use of pressure from his campaign, veteran workers not only here but in surrounding communities ventured the prophecy that the drive would be a flop. Mr. Goodman, however, adhered strictly to his announced policy, and the results of Sunday night's meeting proved the correctness of his reasoning.

Everywhere, and in Indianapolis in particular, it was felt that pressure of one kind or another must be employed in order to realize the largest possible quotas.

Current Comment

Traffic in Hechsharim Decried by The Jewish World of Boston—Among the many problems in the religious life of our Jewish community has been the matter of Hechsharim. Not unlike the general problem of Kashruth, the Passover Hechshar has been the cause of much comment and criticism. The deplorable prevailing practise of obtaining an Hechshar by applying and paying direct to individual rabbis has caused very often mistrust among many and apathy among our youth and derision and Chilul Hashem among our many non-Jews who apply for it. If Kashruth is, and should be, our main objective, the granting of certificates or Hechsharim to various firms should not be the vested interest of individual rabbis but directed and supervised by a local communal authority.

In some cases Hechsharim have been obtained from unscrupulous individuals who were not concerned with the purity of the product they were endorsing but so long as they got their fee. We know of one particular case of a concern that has been using an Hechshar given to it by the rabbi some years ago. Last year, a devoted Jewess called us and told us in a very disturbed fashion that the rabbi who endorsed the product has been dead for six years!

In England, in most communities Hechsharim are not granted by individual rabbis but by a Beth Din under the supervision of the Chief Rabbi. It is important to mention here that no fee is charged by the Beth Din for the granting of the license. The license is not a permanent one. It is dated for the particular Passover it is intended and this is noted on the labels placed on the products.
